ode to summer

The image is a vertical composition. The top and bottom portions show a street scene viewed through the branches of a tree with vibrant green leaves and clusters of small white blossoms. The tree branches frame the central text. The background street is paved with asphalt, has double yellow lines, and leads towards a building with large windows and a red awning. A white fence is visible on the right side of the street.

OVER!

as winter approaches and everything i thought would be forever dies, i have to remember death preceded life.
